

Grandmas and Grandpas 2004 Day-To-Day Calendar

It's been said that the role of a grandparent is to love, love, love, unconditionally. These days, the 70 million grandparents in the United States are heeding the call: 44 percent of them see their grandkids at least once a week. And today's technologies allow even long-distance grandparents to develop close ties with their grandchildren. The Grandmas and Grandpas 2004 Calendar is a wonderful way to celebrate the joys of grandparenthood. With hundreds of wry observations and funny firsthand accounts (I tried hard to be cool about the looming first grandchild, but my unconscious tricked me into misreading the nameplate on a Pontiac as Grand Ma when it was clearly Grand Am) as well as many important tips (Be aware that nothing is toddler-proof. Before my two-year-old grandson came over to my new house, I covered the electrical outlets. He wasn't there thirty minutes when he brought me a handful of outlet covers), this calendar makes a perfect gift for Grandma and Grandpa.
